3. Based on the information provided, IAS will determine the type of assessment (e.g., on-site or desk review) that will be required for confirming the accredited organization’s ongoing compliance at the new location:

- a. To maintain accreditation, all calibration laboratories must undergo an on-site assessment at the new premises after relocation;
 - b. IAS will endeavor to conduct all on-site assessments within 90 days after notification to IAS of relocation to new premises;
 - c. Organizations may request to have their on-site assessment conducted in conjunction with their routine reassessment on the proviso that the next routine reassessment is within 90 days of relocating to the new premises;
 - d. Fees for follow-up on-site assessments will be based on the current fee schedule available on the IAS website for the specific programs;
4. On the date that accredited activities cease at the old location, IAS will temporarily suspend accreditation and replace the certificate of accreditation on the IAS website with a statement to contact IAS for the current accreditation status of the organization.
 5. Once the on-site assessment or desk review by IAS has been completed and the operations are found to be compliant with the required standard, IAS will re-activate the accreditation, website information and issue an updated certificate of accreditation bearing the new address.
 6. The accredited organization may commence issuing reports and certificates with the IAS logo for their scope of accreditation following the review and decision by IAS to grant continuation of accreditation.
